CHADWICK IN JAIL.

After a Fruitless Search All Day
For Bail Her Attorneys
Gave Up the Fight.

NO PRIVILEGES ALLOWED HER.

For the First Time Since Her Trouble
the Woman Consented to Talk
For Publication.

She Denied Relationship to Mrs. York,
Who Gave Out an Interview About the Early Life of Mrs.
Chadwick.

New York, Dec. 9.—Mrs. Cassie L. Chadwick Thursday night occupied one of the scantily furnished cells in the Tombs. After a fruitless search all day for $15,000 bail, her attorneys gave up the fight Thursday night, and Philip Carpenter, her chief counsel, stood in the corridor of the Federal building at 9 o'clock when United States Marshal Henkel threw open the double doors of his office and led the woman out on the way to prison.

Mrs. Chadwick was wan, tired and almost fainting. She made her way across the hall to an elevator, leaning heavily on the marshal's arm and that of her son, Emil.

The party passed through a double row of curious people to a carriage, which was driven directly to the Tombs. Arriving there, Mrs. Chadwick was half carried up the steps and into the building. After the usual preliminaries had been attended to, the woman asked permission to have her nurse remain with her. This was denied, the warden saying that she should have no privileges not allowed other prisoners.

Mother and Son Embrace.

Mrs. Chadwick gave a handbag and a few trinkets to the nurse and whispered some instructions to her son. Marshal Henkel formally turned his prisoner over to the warden and she was taken to the matron's room. She asked to say good-night to her son and the lad eagerly rushed to his mother, and wrapping his arms about her, gave her a long embrace. Then she was led away to the inner office, where her pedigree was taken and she was assigned to a cell. The son and the nurse entered a carriage and were driven to a hotel.

While lying on a couch in the United States marshal's office awaiting a bondsman, Mrs. Chadwick for the first time since her name has been before the public consented to talk for publication and gave the representatives of the press a statement in which she denied relationship to Mrs. York, of San Francisco, who gave out an interview Thursday about the earlier life of Mrs. Chadwick.

The Mme. Devere Business.

In justice to her son, Mrs. Chadwick said she would not make a statement about "this Mme. Devere business" at the present time, but promised later "Mme. Devere's whereabouts and everything else in connection with this case will be sworn." When asked concerning Andrew Carnegie's connection with her financial affairs, she declined absolutely to talk, referring her interviewer to her counsel.

To add to her cup of woe, it was learned Thursday night that a charge of forgery would very likely be made against the woman in Ohio, based on the Carnegie notes and other papers given as securities for loans.

Efforts to get bail will continue, although Mrs. Chadwick expressed the desire Thursday night to go Cleveland as soon as possible. She said she would go there voluntarily, were it not for the contrary advice of counsel.

A Lunch Counter Meal.

Mrs. Chadwick dined at 7 o'clock Thursday night in Marshal Henkel's office under conditions strange in contrast to the manner in which she lived at New York hotels. Her dinner consisted of an orange, a ham sandwich and a piece of cake brought to her by her son from a Broadway lunch counter. She lay on a hard leather couch, in a room filled with desks, chairs and file cases. A deputy marshal stood watch while her nurse took the meager lunch from a paper bag and peeled the orange. Emil sat by in silence and ate a few bites of a sandwich, and the nurse dried her tears long enough to taste the lunch counter fare.

The three unfortunates had nothing to say to each other. Occasionally Mrs. Chadwick sobbed, and the faithful nurse leaned over her mistress and smoothed her gray hair.

Read the Evening Papers.

Mrs. Chadwick's face was much inflamed, her eyes were red and her hands trembled violently as she pushed away the remains of the food and motioned Freda to give her a pile of evening papers which lay on a chair near the couch. She picked the papers up one by one and between sobs gave the first pages a hasty glance. After she had run through the lot she selected one which seemed to interest her especially and began reading it with care. But the strain seemed too great. She burst into tears and the slight boy, who seemed cool under all the excitement, hastened to his mother's side and quieted her with kisses. Thus the trio awaited the announcement of Mrs. Chadwick's counsel that she must go to jail because security for $15,000 could not be had.

Carnegie's Specific Denial.

Cleveland, O., Dec. 9.—County Prosecuting Attorney Keeler received this message, signed "Andrew Carnegie," Thursday:

"Never signed such notes. Have no notes out. Have not issued a note in many years. Hope you can arrange to execute affidavit here."

Keeler had sent a telegram to Carnegie late Wednesday, asking the ironmaster if he had signed any of the notes upon which Mrs. Cassie L. Chadwick raised money.

Mrs. York's Story.

San Francisco, Dec. 9.—Mrs. Alice M. York, who resides at 1030 Geary street, claims to be Mrs. Cassie L. Chadwick's sister, and she states that Mrs. Chadwick is identical with Mme. Devere, who served a term in the Ohio penitentiary for forgery. Mrs. York, who is a widow with two daughters, came here 18 months ago from Cleveland.

He left the side of his wife in a sleeping car while they were on their way to Florida, from Crawfordsville, Ind., to spend the winter. No news of the missing man was received until Thursday. His wife, who is at Jacksonville, Fla., has been notified.

It is supposed that Mr. Remley wandered from the train in a temporary fit of insanity or during an attack of somnambulism.

Boston, Dec. 9.—Henry H. Rogers, of New York, Thursday filed in the Massachusetts supreme judicial court answer to the suit for $50,000,000 brought against him by C. R. Raymond in the interests of Mrs. Elizabeth Greenough.

This amount is claimed as royalties on petroleum refined under a process alleged to have been invented by Benjamin F. Greenough. The defendant admits an agreement in 1874 with Greenough whereby the secret of Greenough's alleged invention was to be used in rendering petroleum non-explosive, but declares it was found that the process did not accomplish the end claimed for it.

A HIDEOUS CRIME.

Entire Family of B. B. Hughes in Trenton, S. C., Was Cruelly Murdered.

THE DWELLING THEN SET ON FIRE.

Skulls of Three Were Crushed as if
Hit by an Axe or Some Blunt Instrument.

One Theory Is That the House Was Entered For the Purpose of Robbery—Excitement Runs High and a Reward Offered.

Augusta, Ga., Dec. 9.—A special from Edgefield, S. C., says: A most hideous crime occurred at Trenton on Wednesday night, equal in horror to the Statesboro affair, if the generally accepted theory be true that the victims were murdered before the house was fired. At 5 o'clock Thursday morning the residence of B. B. Hughes, centrally located in the town, was discovered to be on fire. Neighbors rushed to the scene, but the fire had progressed so far that entrance to the house was impossible. As soon as the fire had died down searchers found the charred and almost unrecognizable bodies of the entire family, consisting of Mr. Hughes, his wife Eva and two young daughters, Emmie, aged 19, and Hattie, 14 years of age. Mr. Hughes' body lay just below where had been situated the door leading from his room to the hall with a bullet hole through his head. A pistol with one empty chamber lay nearby. Part of his charred clothes were on his person, showing that he was dressed at the time he met death. The body of his wife was on the bed springs while those of the young ladies were similarly situated.

Probably Killed in Their Sleep.

The skulls of these three were crushed as if hit by an axe or some blunt instrument. The bodies occupied a most natural position with nothing to indicate a struggle, showing that they had been killed in sleep.

A coroner's jury was impaneled but as yet no testimony has been taken, it being thought best to await further developments. It was said that three tracks were discovered leading from the field up to the rear of the house. The county bloodhounds were secured and put on the trail, but this has availed nothing. One theory is that the house was entered for the purpose of robbery.

Excitement runs high, but nothing rash will be done. Upon the request of Solicitor Thurmond, Gov. Heyward has offered a reward for the apprehension of the guilty parties.

DOINGS IN CONGRESS.

Annual Fight On the Civil Service Commission in the House.

Washington, Dec. 9.—Senate.—The senate held only a short session on Thursday and adjourned until Monday. An attempt to secure consideration of the pure food bill was defeated by a demand of Mr. Aldrich that the bill be read at length, which brought an objection from Tillman, who did not want the time consumed. Mr. Tillman brought the case of William D. Crum, the colored man nominated for collector of Charleston, S. C., into prominence by asking for a report from the committee on judiciary as to the status of recess appointments.

House.—The annual fight on the civil service commission was begun in the house Thursday during consideration of the legislative appropriation bill. The opposition came from Messrs. Bartlett (Ga.), Hepburn (Ia.) and Grosvenor (O.). Mr. Hepburn moved to strike out the entire appropriation for the commission and its force of clerks at the same time denouncing the civil service as not having improved since the days of the spoils system, but on the contrary, as growing less and less efficient.

MARCUM DAMAGE CASE.

A Motion to Continue the Trial Was Overruled.

Winchester, Ky., Dec. 9.—After some delay caused by the effort of the defense to obtain a continuance a jury was secured in the Marcum damage case Thursday. The widow of James B. Marcum is suing Judge James Hargis, Alex P. Hargis, Sheriff Ed Callahan and B. F. French, all of Breathitt county, for $100,000 damages on account of their alleged complicity in the assassination of her husband.

When the case was called an attempt was made by the defense to secure a continuance on the ground that Judge Hargis, although present, was too ill to stand trial. The motion was overruled. The remainder of the day was occupied in the selection of the jury. Before adjourning court Judge Benton issued attachments for Mose Feltner, Sam Fields and Ruck Cottongame, three important witnesses for the plaintiff. Mrs. Marcum, in an affidavit has sworn that these witnesses were intimidated and enticed away to prevent their appearance in her behalf. The taking of testimony will begin Friday.

CZAR'S WARSHIPS.

All Cruisers and Battleships, Together With Two Gunboats, Destroyed at Port Arthur.

ONLY DESTROYERS ARE INTACT.

The Japanese Will Now Turn Their Attention to the Remaining Torpedo Boat Destroyers.

When These Have Been Destroyed
the Guns Will Be Directed Against Steamers and Transports in the Harbor.

London, Dec. 9.—The Daily Telegraph's correspondent before Port Arthur telegraphs that all of the Russian battleships and cruisers, together with the gunboats Gillak and Fusadneck, were sunk or destroyed and that only the torpedo boat destroyers remain intact.

According to special dispatches from Tokio and Shanghai giving unofficial reports, the crews of all the Russian war vessels in the harbor of Port Arthur were landed and apparently no effort was made to move the vessels. The Japanese will now turn their attention to the torpedo boat destroyers and when these have been destroyed the guns will be directed against steamers and transports in the harbor. Mail advices to Japan describing the capture of 203 Metre hill state that the Japanese drenched the timber works of the trenches with kerosene and started a furious fire which was fanned by a strong gale. The Japanese advance was very slow. They were obliged to make roads with bags of earth. It was a sudden decision to make a night attack that brought victory to the Japanese. Nothing is yet officially known as to the extent of the Japanese casualties.

Names of the Vessels.

A long list of decorations and promotions of naval officers at Port Arthur, signed October 24 and published at St. Petersburg November 25, showed that the warships at Port Arthur on the former date included the battleships Retvizan, Pobleda, Peresviet, Poltava and Sevastopol, the armored cruiser Bayan, the protected cruiser Pallada, the gunboats Vasdnik, Gillak and Bohr, the coast defense vessels Oushshi, the transport Amur (since described as a mine ship), the transport Angara (since referred to as a hospital ship) and the torpedo boat destroyers Stronin, Silny, Smely, Serdti, Boiki, Bezshumi, Storozhevoi, Kazyaschichi and Rastoropny. Of the destroyers the Rastoropny was blown up at Chefoo by her crew after going there with dispatches.

Results of Japs' Bombardment.

Of the other named ships, as the result of the Japanese bombardment from 203 Metre hill, the Poltava has been sunk, the Retvizan is listing to starboard and her upper deck is nearly submerged; the Peresviet, according to the report of the commanding officer of the naval battery received at Tokio Thursday afternoon, has been sunk; the Pallada is beginning to list to port and is still undergoing a vigorous bombardment; the Pobleda, according to the latest official Japanese advices, is seriously damaged, listing aft and submerged to the stern walk, and the Bayan is aground and burning.

Thus two of the five battleships have been sunk, two have been seriously damaged or are in danger of meeting the fate of the Poltava and the Peresviet, and the fifth, the Sevastopol, seems to be somewhat out of the Japanese range, protected by a hill, above which only the tops of her masts can be seen by the Japanese gunners. Of the cruisers, the Payan seems to have been altogether disabled, while the Pallada is listing and is an object of Japanese fire.
